Dr. Eugene Elgin, 64, Dies On Sunday; Was Prominent For Years In GOP, Lodge Circles

Dr. Eugene Elgin, 64, practicing physician in East Berlin since 1909 and prominent in political and fraternal life in Adams county for four decades, died Sunday evening at 7:52 o'clock at his home in East Berlin.

Death followed a long illness. His condition had been critical following a heart attack ten days ago.

A former county medical director, a former Republican state committee member, treasurer of the Adams County Firemen's association for the first 20 years of its life and former county representative in the General Assembly at Harrisburg, Dr. Elgin was widely known throughout Adams county.

Was State Health Official

He was born near Brunswick, Md., on March 27, 1886, and was a son of the late William S. and Emma F. Elgin. He attended schools there and was graduated from the University of Maryland Medical school about 1906. He interned at St. Luke's hospital in Baltimore and then entered practice at East Berlin in August of 1909. His 41 years of continuous practice in Adams county are believed to have set a record for physicians in this county.

For the last 12 years Dr. Elgin had been an epidemiologist and division chief in the state Department of Health.

He was Adams county's member of the lower House at Harrisburg in 1921 and 1922 and for many years had served as county medical director.

Helped Organize County Firemen

He was a member of the Republican State committee from Adams county for two terms in the middle 1940's and at various times had served his own community of East Berlin as school director, councilman and burgess. During one of his terms as an East Berlin school director, he served as president of the Adams County School directors' association.

The deceased was one of the organizers of the Adams County Firemen's Association in 1922 and was its treasurer for nearly two decades.

Dr. Elgin was active in lodge circles and was a former district president of the Patriotic Order Sons of America and had headed the East Berlin camp at various times. He was a former president of the Adams county organization of the POS of A.

Headed Salvage Drives

During World War II, he was a member of the state Council of Defense and was salvage chairman for Adams county. In that capacity, he headed various drives for salvage materials during the war. In the first World War, he was a Red Cross chairman and worked with the Salvation army and Y.M.C.A. and assisted with the Liberty Loan drive in this county.

Professionally, he was a former president of the Adams County Medical society and had been president of the Fifth Censorial district Medical society which included York, Fulton, Cumberland, Frank-

TWO LINCOLN FETES TONIGHT

Lincoln's birthday will be celebrated at two dinner meetings here this evening.

The county Republican party will hold its annual Lincoln Day dinner at the Hotel Gettysburg this evening at 6:30 o'clock with Dr. Russell E. Teague, newly appointed State Secretary of Health as the speaker. Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, head of the history department of Gettysburg college, will also speak.

The Gettysburg camp of the Sons of Union Veterans will hold its annual Lincoln Day dinner at the same time in the GAR post rooms on East Middle street with the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Fox, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Reformed church here as speaker. Motion pictures of the county's sesquicentennial will be shown and newspaper articles appearing in the Gettysburg newspapers in November 1863 pertaining to Lincoln's visit here will be read. The dinner is open to all members of the SUV, their wives and families, and to all members of the auxiliary organizations of the GAR, and their families.

18 PLANES ARE SPOTTED HERE BY OBSERVERS

Adams county's airplane spotters—civil defense ground observers—found the air rather full of planes during the two-day test of air raid drills Saturday and Sunday.

The Gettysburg observation post reported 18 planes to the Harrisburg filter station, and the observers confessed that they think they missed a few.

To help overcome the "missing" of planes, the observers today asked anyone with a good flat roof near the center of town to donate its use for ground observation. They asked that anyone willing to permit use of a roof call Miss Martha B. Stallsmith, the chief observer, at 195-X.

In order to set up phone facilities direct to Harrisburg for the first test air raid drill since the end of World War II, the observers were "grounded" Saturday and Sunday, making their observations from Lincoln Square and reporting from the office of P. Ward Stallsmith on York street.

Saturday afternoon the spotters saw four planes and on Sunday afternoon they found 14 planes in the sky during the 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. period they were on duty.

While some of the planes were local, most were army planes taking part in the test, including two motor bombers and one four-motor bomber.

The local ground observer corps totals 22 observers. Miss Stallsmith urged additional women to volunteer

COUNTIAN IS 3RD IN CONTEST

Patsy Hower, 19-year-old Newport high school senior, became Pennsylvania's cherry pie baking champion Saturday afternoon.

Competing against titlists from four other counties, the Perry county girl was selected at the annual state contest at Hanover high school to represent Pennsylvania in the national cherry pie baking contest at Chicago later this month.

Winning the title gave Miss Hower a free trip to Chicago, February 21, accompanied by her homemaker teacher, Miss Sara Gantt. She was presented with a bouquet of roses by Thomas Oyer, Gettysburg R. D., president of the Pennsylvania Cherry Growers association.

Janet Burkins, North York Junior high school, won second place and $20 cash. Third honors went to Dorothy Hartzell, 17, Biglerville R. 2, who represented Adams county in the contest. Fourth place was won by Joretta Crusey, 18, Boiling Springs high school and fifth by Leona Shatzler, St. Thomas high school.

The new state champion is planning to become a teacher—but has not made up her mind as yet whether she wants to teach art, or home economics.

BAND IS TELEVIEWED

Pvt. Arthur Fox, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Howard S. Fox, South Stratton street, was among members of the Second Army band which was televised by station WBAL-TV Saturday afternoon over Channel 11. The local soldier is one of 56 members of the band which will appear on half hour programs, from 3:30 to 4 o'clock each Saturday for the next three months over the Baltimore television station. Private Fox, who has been a member of the band for three months, plays the euphonium. The band is stationed at Fort Meade.

Drury Resigns Federal Position

Newton B. Drury has resigned as director of the National Park Service, according to an announcement by Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman.

The resignation is effective April 1. Arthur E. Demaray, associate director, has been named to succeed Mr. Drury.

Mr. Drury was appointed director of the park service August 20, 1940, and for 21 years previously had been prominent in conservation work. Mr. Drury visited here a number of times during the past decade. Mr. Demaray has also visited here frequently. Ancestors of his at one time resided in Adams county, along the Low Dutch road.

E. P. HAMILTON DIES SUDDENLY 9 A.M. SUNDAY

Edgar P. Hamilton, 59, died suddenly Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at his home, 534 Carlisle street, of a heart attack.

Grand Knight of the local Knights of Columbus, Mr. Hamilton had been in ill health for about a week. Sunday morning he arose, but complained of feeling ill and returned to bed. A short time later he was found unconscious.

A native of Adams county, he was a son of J. Cress and Ellen Myers Hamilton and resided in Gettysburg all of his life. His wife, the former Loretta Gross, died February 16, 1947.

Active In K. Of C.

The deceased was a member of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church, the Holy Name society of the church, Knights of Columbus and the Pennsylvania Catholic Beneficial league.

He had served as Grand Knight of the local council for many years. He had also served for 11 years as district deputy of the Knights of Columbus. Active throughout the state in the K. of C., he had joined that organization before the local council was established and was one of the founders and a charter member of the local council. He had also served in a number of offices of the

CAR SKIDS OFF ROAD; 3 HURT

A station wagon operated by Michael H. Halbert, 24, of Drexel Hill, Pa., skidded off the Gettysburg-Harrisburg road a quarter of a mile south of Dillsburg at 1:50 o'clock Sunday afternoon, plunged down a five-foot embankment and overturned on its top, with the vehicle resting against a billboard.

Halbert suffered bruises of both knees, lacerations of his lips and chin and several teeth were knocked loose. His wife, Nancy, 24, had a sprained wrist, bruises of both knees and concussion. Stanley Kurtz, 24, Washington, D. C., a passenger, suffered lacerations of the forehead and cheeks and concussion.

State police of the Gettysburg subdivision reported that Halbert told them he was driving south and was struck by another car passing him in the same direction. He said he struck a patch of ice as he was attempting to regain control and went off the road. Damage to the station wagon was estimated at $1,500.

The injured were treated at the Carlisle hospital.

Local Couple Is Wed In Westminster

Miss Regina M. Abell, daughter of Mrs. Marie Abell, 422 South Washington street, this morning became the bride of James M. Baer, of Gettysburg, at a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Eugene Woodward in the Methodist parsonage at Westminster.

The bride wore a maroon suit with black accessories and a corsage of mixed flowers. The bride's mother wore a navy blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses and yellow daffodils. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home.

Following a wedding trip the couple will reside at 43 East Middle street.

Bank Barn With Corn, Oats, Hay And Farm Equipment Lost In $10,000 Fire Sunday Night

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large bank barn on the former Isaac H. Weikert farm near Knoxlyn Sunday night, with a loss estimated at $10,000.

The fire, visible for many miles, attracted hundreds of motorists, causing one of the worst traffic jams at a fire in many years, bringing a stern warning today from Sgt. Joseph A. Temple, in charge of the Gettysburg state police detail, of wholesale prosecution if such a situation occurs again.

One fire company, Fairfield, was prevented entirely from reaching the scene of the fire. Gettysburg's three trucks and one from Cash-town found difficulty not only in getting to the scene of the fire, but in getting out again to refill their booster tanks.

The fire was discovered shortly after 7 o'clock by neighbors, who called the Gettysburg fire company.

The farm is owned by Carlos C. Knox, formerly of Syracuse, N. Y., a civilian engineer employed by the government in Korea. Knox purchased the farm about a year and a half ago, intending to retire and live on it. He is still in Korea.

Mr. Knox's affairs are handled locally by C. A. Heiges and Son, Mr. Heiges said the farm was being worked on shares by Dorie Kint, whose farm is nearby. The farm home is occupied by the family of Stanley Kuntz. A tenant house is vacant.

Mr. Kint had been at the barn about 6 p.m. and said he saw no signs of fire then. When fire companies arrived, the blaze had gained such headway that the barn was beyond saving. Two small buildings near the barn caught fire but were saved.

Most of the stock was saved.

Defend Our Freedoms
Rear Admiral A. A. Antrim, commandant of the Mechanicsburg Naval Depot, told the scouts assembled at the National cemetery: "We are all here today to celebrate Lincoln's birthday; to pay homage to one of the truly great men of all times; honored not only in this, his own country, but in many other lands. It is especially fitting that you scouts should make this annual pilgrimage here, for Lincoln believed in and stood for the same ideals which make scouting such a potent force in the development and continuance of good citizenship."

"Let us all at this time attest to our faith in the great principles

Here And There News Collected At Random

One hundred and forty-two years ago today Abraham Lincoln was born. When he was 28 years of age he addressed the Young Men's Lyceum of Springfield, Illinois. Three months later he moved from his log cabin home in New Salem to Springfield from where he rose to world-wide fame.

In observance of Lincoln's birthday anniversary today we publish herewith a portion of that early address:

"As a subject for the remarks of the evening, 'The perpetuation of our political institutions' is selected.

"In the great journal of things happening under the sun we, the American people, find our account running under date of the nineteenth century of the Christian era. We find ourselves in the peaceful possession of the fairest portion of the earth as

BOY RUNS INTO CAR; THREE ARE HURT IN CRASH

Jimmy Bricker, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bricker, 114 Chambersburg street, suffered a fracture of the skull at 8:35 o'clock this morning when he ran into the side of an automobile operated by Bernard Gaffney, 63 Steinwehr avenue, on South Washington street. He was taken to the Warner hospital, local police reported.

Gaffney, according to borough police, was driving north on South Washington street, and the youngster ran out of an alley in the rear of the C. W. Epney garage. His condition this afternoon was reported as improved.

Three Are Injured

Three persons were injured in an accident at 9:25 o'clock Sunday morning at the intersection of Baltimore street and Steinwehr avenue, according to another borough police report.

An automobile operated by Charles William Eaton, 31, of New Berlin R. 1, N. Y., ran through a red light and crashed into a car driven by Frances Gilbert, 36, of Gettysburg R. 1.

Eaton suffered a laceration of the chin and bruises of both knees. Miss Gilbert had a laceration of the forehead. Mrs. Wiley T. Rightmire, Gettysburg R. 1, a passenger in the Gilbert automobile, suffered a fracture of the right ankle and lacerations of the face.

The Gilbert car was traveling north on Steinwehr avenue, and was approaching the green light. The right front of the Eaton car struck the left front of the Gilbert automobile. Damage to the Gilbert car was estimated at $375 and to the Eaton car at $275.

Eaton was charged with running through a red traffic signal and with failing to yield the right of way. He forfeited fines of $10 and $5, plus costs, on the two charges, today.

THREE STUDENTS HURT IN CRASH

Three Gettysburg college students were injured at 11:45 o'clock Saturday night when their automobile struck an icy patch of highway on the Emmitsburg road about half a mile south of Gettysburg, skidded off the road and overturned.

Donald A. Greisemann, 18, of Wildwood, N. J., suffered a fractured pelvis. Louise Walsh, 18, of Staten Island, N. Y., received severe bruises and possible fracture of the right arm, and Louise Lear, 20, of Ocean City, N. J., a broken left shoulder blade and fractured rib. They were taken to the Warner hospital.

The driver of the automobile, Harold Edwin Mountford, 22, of 15 South Royal street, York, escaped injury.

State police of the Gettysburg subdivision said the car was owned by Frederick R. Shenk, York, and was traveling north. Damage to the car was estimated at $375.

North Adams PTA Meeting Tonight

The program committee for the evening is composed of R. S. Yohn and the Rev. Norman Bortner.

A business meeting will be held prior to the showing of the film.

Notice: The bingo party at Knights of Columbus room, Lincoln Square will be cancelled tonight due to the death of Edgar Hamilton.

60,000 Reds Batter Deep Wedge Thru Allied Lines

Tokyo, Feb. 12 (AP)—Chinese and Korean Reds rammed a dangerously deep wedge today into Allied lines on the mountainous central Korean war-front.

They launched a savage counter-offensive shortly before Sunday midnight with 60,000 troops and hit throughout Monday in mounting fury along a 39 mile front.

By late Monday night, the Reds had smashed a wedge seven miles deep in the Allied line southwest of Hoengsong. They also had caved in South Korean forces at a number of other points and cut off some Allied units.

American officers were striving desperately to rally the South Koreans.

The Reds were fighting hand-to-hand with Allied defenders in the key road center of Hoengsong. One and a half miles south of Hoengsong, the Communists had set up a road block. A Red column was sweeping toward that area to cut the Hoengsong-Wonju road.

Situation Is Serious
Field dispatches said the situation was confused and serious.

The Communist counter-offensive—a typical maneuver launched at night with massive forces at the weak point—threatened to wipe out the big Allied gains of the past 18 days in the central sector.

On the western front, the Allies had swept Saturday into Seoul's industrial suburb of Yongdungpo, its big airport at Kimpo and its seaport of Incheon.

The South Korean Capital Division on the east coast rolled north across the old parallel 38 border Sunday and captured the coastal town of Yangyang five miles deep in Red Korea.

But the four or more Allied divisions massed around Seoul in the west and the South Koreans inside North Korea on the east coast could be forced to pull back for their lives unless the Communist smash in

$25,000 GOAL SET FOR 1951 LOYALTY FUND

Forty-nine members of the various classes of Gettysburg college met at the Shelter House Saturday noon for the annual class assembly dinner. The objective of the meeting was to prepare the various classes for the annual Loyalty Fund appeal, which represents the one opportunity the alumni have to contribute to the needs of the college. Each class agent assumes the responsibility of canvassing his or her class for gifts to the fund. Last year 896 alumni contributed $8,745.75 to purchase equipment of the new music department of the college. This year the executive committee of the Alumni Association, which is the Fund Committee, set a goal of 2,000 contributors and $25,000. The money will be used as the board of trustees deems best to meet the crisis which faces all church related colleges due to the decreased enrollment necessitated by the enlistment of young men in the armed forces.

Dr. Hanson Speaks

Under the chairmanship of Ralph W. Hoch, '16, vice president of the Alumni Association, the Fund Committee feels confident that it will exceed its goals.

Dr. John Aberly delivered the invocation at the dinner which was served at noon.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson spoke on "The Present Crisis of the Church Related Colleges." John A. Apple of the class of 1919, and president of the alumni association, spoke on "The Objectives of the 1951 Loyalty Fund." William C. French, Franklin and Marshall alumni secretary, spoke on "You Can Do It, If You Will." Mr. Hock spoke on "Duties of the Class Agents" and C. Paul Cessna, executive secretary of the local alumni association, conducted a question and answer suggestion period and gave a roll call of class agents.

Representatives of the various classes are as follows:

Conference Here Lutheran Precedent

A special conference-type of "recruiting for the Lutheran ministry" was put into use by the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America when this group sponsored a "Conference on the Ministry" at the Lutheran Theological seminary here over the week-end.

The conference chairman, Dr. David H. Bremer, Washington, D. C., a secretary of the ULCA board, said that "this is the first known time that any Lutheran seminary has held this kind of a meeting." He said about 40 selected students from colleges and universities throughout Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and the District of Columbia were the guests of the two-sponsoring Lutheran groups—the board and the seminary.

Aimed at educating students who are in so-called secular fields to the opportunities and work of the Christian ministry, the conference brought here the top educators and theologians of the ULCA.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. James McKinney Taneytown, announce the birth of a son at the Warner hospital this morning.

Bullets Rally To Down Wagner; W. Maryland Here On Tuesday

A last quarter spurt gave the Gettysburg college dribblers a hard-earned 75-71 victory over Wagner here Saturday evening for the Bullets' eighth win against six losses.

Coach "Hen" Bream's lads trailed by a wide margin throughout the first two periods, finally catching up and gaining their first lead at 52-51 with two minutes remaining in the third quarter.

Wagner entered the last quarter in front 53-52 but the Bullets gradually pulled out in front and held tenaciously to a slim margin to the finish.

Fine shooting by the Seahawks in the first half enabled the visitors to stay in command. Wagner ran up an 11-2 lead in the first five minutes. Coder's layup being the only Bullet goal which had tied the score at 2-2 in the opening minute.

A trio of goals by Gormisch and Bosley enabled the visitors to hold a 22-12 lead at the quarter.

Wagner held grimly to its lead during the second period but in the final minutes the Bullets began to move. A pair of fouls by Pizzaloto and a goal and foul by Watson cut the margin to 35-33 at half time.

Score Deadlocked

Pizzaloto landed a short chuck 30 seconds after the third quarter opened to tie the count. The score was deadlocked at 40-40 and 42-42 before Wagner went ahead 51-47. A free toss by Pizzaloto and goals by the same lead and O'Brien sent the Bullets ahead 52-51 but Gormisch landed a pivot shot as the round ended 53-52.

Midway in the final quarter the score was 58-58. A goal by Belber and foul by Ketterman were followed by two free tosses by Bloomquist. Only a few points separated the teams the rest of the way. The Bullets built up a 72-67 lead with a minute and a half remaining and held on to the finish.

Belber and Hare each landed 16 points for the Bullets while Gormisch accounted for 21 for the Seahawks. Gettysburg caged 25 of 30 foul tosses.

Johnny Yoviesin's frosh chalked up their seventh win in eight starts by defeating Hershey Junior college 79-58 in the preliminary affair.

On Tuesday the Bullets open a three-game week by meeting Western Maryland here. The freshmen will clash in the preliminary at 7 o'clock. On Thursday the varsity plays at Mt. St. Mary's and on Saturday meets Bucknell at Lewisburg.

Joe Geri Awarded Dapper Dan Title

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12 (AP)—Modest Joe Geri has the title of Pittsburgh's outstanding sports figure of 1950, but says teammates on the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers helped him win the honor.

Geri took little more than a minute last night to express his appreciation to the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette's Dapper Dan club which awarded him the title at a dinner attended by 1,200.

The half-back who broke three club records last season heard speaker after speaker praise him. Then Geri declared: "I was quite surprised to receive the award. There are 32 other members of the Steeler squad and they are just as much responsible for me winning as I am. Each man deserves a piece of this plaque."

The New York Yankees of 1922 and 1949 won the American league pennant by only one game.

SWIMMERS LOSE TO SWARTHMORE, DREXEL ADDED

The Gettysburg college swimming team lost to the strong Swarthmore college mermen 53-22 in a meet held Saturday afternoon at Swarthmore.

Bob Dellabaugh was missing from the Bullet lineup due to a throat infection.

Two first places were gained by Jack Shainline's outfit, Bryant Heston won the diving event with 66.86 points while Len Nugent copped the 100-yard freestyle in 1:03.1. Scott Lippincott was second in diving with 55.55 points.

Next Saturday the Bullets will entertain Drexel here, the meet having been recently added to the schedule.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—What sort of an international team competition is it where two players can make up a team and one good one often can make the difference between victory and defeat? ... It's the Davis Cup—and in our opinion it isn't an international test at all.

This is inspired by a commu-

niqué from Davis Cupper Ted

Schroeder, enclosing an article by

Australia's John Bromwich on the 190-yard freestyle in 1:03.1. Scott

Lippincott was second in diving with 55.55 points.

Improving Warrior Cagers Meet Hershey Here Tuesday

Gettysburg high's cage outfit, which has been picking up momentum in the last 10 days, faces a tough series of games in completing its season within the next two weeks.

The Warriors meet Hershey high, first half South Penn titlists here on Tuesday and then go to Chambersburg Friday to meet the defending league champs. On February 20 Hanover will be played on the night hawk court and the season will be ended with an engagement here on February 23 with Mechanicsburg.

While the locals are playing much better ball than earlier in the campaign they will have to show even more improvement for the coming contests. All of future opponents are rated higher than Carlisle, Shippenburg and Waynesboro who have been beaten in that order by the Present-men to give them their present lofty position—a first place tie with Chambersburg in the second half race.

Gave Five Test

Hershey was given perhaps its stiffest battle in the first half by Gettysburg when the Trojans eked out a 37-34 win on their home floor. Tuesday's game promises to be a thriller all the way.

Top performers for Sterling Banta's outfit have been Dick Gaspari and Glenn Miller.

All of the Warrior performers have been coming along steadily in performance. Perhaps the most outstanding has been Cecil McCormick, 6-3 junior center. His work has largely been responsible for the Warriors' recent successes. Ted Ford, Jim Skinner and Dick Harriel all have been decided improvements while Guy Crist is proving a very capable performer in subbing for injured Dave Swope.

The Jayvee junior varsity is also on the upward trail, its three straight wins putting it in a three-way tie with Chambersburg and Hanover for the lead in the scrub division.

Other South Penn tilts carded for Tuesday include Chambersburg at Waynesboro, Hanover at Carlisle, and Mechanicsburg at Shippensburg.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIFTERS AND LEANERS

A friend of mine once said to me that there were but two kinds of people—lifters and leaners. In other words there are those who keep giving out something and those who keep taking without any return.

There is nothing that makes life so much worth while as to give encouragement to someone else. To inspire and uplift another inspires and uplifts oneself. You thereby give and get. There is enrichment all around. But that one who merely leans upon another or tries to take all he can get from another shrinks his own soul.

A very good motto is always to be glad to give as much as you take. The greater joy always comes from giving, from lifting another. What you then take is the returning satisfaction though you get nothing else in return. The taker and leaner get no such satisfaction.

Nothing counts for success more than the ability to stand upon one's own legs, learning to be resourceful, and acquiring the habit of initiative. The leaner discards such things and so he remains a leaner paying his way to failure for which he blames others and not himself.

History tells a great deal about lifters and leaners, among individuals and nations. Even a nation cannot long lean too much upon the prosperity of another nation, nor indeed upon its own people, nor can that nation long endure in greatness where its people lean too much upon it.

Much is written and talked about our forefathers as rugged individuals. They were that, but even more they were people who stood on their own legs, asked few favors of anyone, minded their own business, and took pride in their free independence of thought. They were men and women of character. They leaned upon no one. They planted seeds in this western world that flower to this day.

Thank God the leaners are in the minority in every community. I can think of no better idea to present to the young of today than this: Lift—don't lean!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Living On Margin."

Just Folks

HAPPINESS
We talk of happiness as though 'Twas something all were born to know.
Yet, there is neither code nor creed
By which is pleasure guaranteed.

All happiness must come from care;
From courage to withstand despair.
The happiest man I've ever met
Had just discharged a heavy debt.

The desert flowerless will remain
Without the fall of snow and rain.
That life would be a barren one
The sun forever shone upon.

That happiness we seek is won
By burdens borne and duties done,
By meeting troubles undismayed
And debts assumed and fully paid.

A little active effort extinguished the fire, when it was found that the floor had been burnt through and a board partition. The bedding and furniture in the room were so badly damaged by the fire as to be useless. The loss may be about $50 covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown, as there was no stove in the room.

WILL PAY TO WATCH YOUR EXEMPTIONS

(Editor's note: This is the third of 12 stories explaining who has to do what about his income tax return.)

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, Feb. 12 (AP) — Pay close attention to the exemptions you can claim in making your 1950 income tax return.

For each exemption, you deduct $600 from your income; what's left can be taxed.

Everyone filing a return is allowed a $600 exemption for himself. He's also allowed these exemptions:

1. An extra $600 if he was 65 before the end of 1950; and another $600 if he became blind before the end of the year. (A person is considered to be 65 on the day before his 65th birthday. So if your 65th birthday was January 1, 1951, you were considered to be 65 on December 31, 1950 and can claim a $600 exemption.)

2. You also get a $600 exemption for your wife, if she had no income, or, if she had income, if she files a joint return with you.

Wife Should File
Also, if she had no income or, having had income, if she files jointly with you, you get another $600 exemption for her if she reached 65 in 1950 and still another $600 if she was blind before the end of 1950.

(Note this: Under the tax law, a wife is not considered a dependent. So if she had any income, no matter how small, but does not file jointly with you, you can claim no exemption for her at all. (If she had less than $600 income of her own, she doesn't have to file a return but, as noted, unless she does file jointly with you, you can claim no exemption for her. It makes no sense for a wife with no income or less than $600 income not to file jointly with her husband.)

(If she has $600 or more income and files her own separate return, then she gets a $600 exemption for herself, plus another $600 if she reached 65 in 1950, plus still another $600 if she was blind before the end of 1950.)

Who Are Dependents?
3. And you, filing a return, get a $600 exemption for each dependent you can rightly claim. Who can be considered your dependent?

A close relative who got more than half his support from you in 1950 and whose income, if he had any at all, was less than $500. Note that $500. (No one with less than $600 income has to file a return but, through a quirk in the law, no one can be claimed as a dependent if he had $500 income or more. So, if you were supporting someone who had income of at least $500 but less than $600, you can't claim him as a dependent but at the same time he doesn't have to file a return of his own.)

Does age make any difference in claiming a dependent? No. A dependent can be a baby or an old person. And it makes no difference whether or not that person who got more than half his support from you was able to support himself but didn't.

Details On Deductions
You can claim as a dependent only those close relatives: Your child (by blood or legal adoption) or his child (which means your grandchild); a stepchild but not his children; a brother, sister, step-brother, step-sister; your parents, grandparents or other ancestors; your stepfather, stepmother, aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, all related by blood; and your in-laws: father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law.

For example: Even though you contributed to all the support of a cousin you can't claim him as a dependent. And your dependent must be a resident of the United States, Canada or Mexico. For example: You can claim as a dependent a sister who was an alien but lived in the United States. If that same sister was an alien but lived in Europe you couldn't claim her as a dependent.

You can claim as a dependent a child born to you anytime in 1950, even though it died a moment after birth. But you can't claim as a dependent an unborn child or a child born dead.

Suppose a dependent died in 1950. You can claim a full $600 exemption for him, even though he died as early as January 1, 1950, if he was truly a dependent during the part of the year he was alive.

And—you, filing a return, get no more than one $600 exemption for a dependent. You get no extra exemption for a dependent who was blind or 65 in 1950.

That extra exemption for blindness or age—65 is allowed only for the person filing the return and his wife.

Mix Sand, Soil and Peat For Winter Seed Boxes

Success in growing seeds in an indoor seed box will depend to a great extent upon the soil used to fill the box. If this was not brought inside before the ground froze in the fall, it should be dug, and placed under shelter where it will thaw out gradually.

If you try to dry soil quickly, with considerable heat, you may make it very muddy at first, and lumpy thereafter. This will be difficult when what you want is a crumbly soil. Slow thawing will do the work, so do not try to rush things.

Even though you have taken the best top soil from your garden—as you should—it will still need mixing with sand to make it looser, and humus to increase its water holding capacity. Peat moss or leaf mold will supply satisfactory humus, but do not use manure, even when well rotted, in soil to be used to start seeds. Nor should plant food be used, lest too much nitrogen be supplied for the health of the seed sprouts.

A third topsoil, a third peat moss or leaf mold, and a third sharp sand, such as masons use in concrete will make a satisfactory mixture.

After it is well mixed pass it through a sieve, about 1/4 inch mesh; and keep the coarser particles in a pile, to be used in the bottom of the seed boxes. The finer soil is then filled in to the level of the box; it will settle quickly.

Spaghnum moss may be spread in a layer on top of the soil as a means of protecting the seedlings from "damping off" and other diseases. If soil is prepared by this method, there will be no need for feeding the seedling plants until they have reached transplanting size.

Two substitutes for soil which may be used in seed boxes are vermiculite, a form of mica used to insulate buildings, and spaghnum moss. These are sterile substances which have many advantages, being much lighter than soil; but they are entirely lacking in plant food and if used the plants must be fed as soon as they have made true leaves, (their second pair) with water, in each gallon of which a tablespoon of your garden plant food has been stirred.

give the improved sorts semi-shade or at least light protection from all-day sun. This does not, however, imply that daylilies will not do well in full sun.

Clumps should be lifted in late fall or early spring every four or five years, divided and replanted in order to prevent crowding. This requirement affords an inexpensive means to multiply improved types.

Good drainage, deep mellowness, and plenty of fertility will bring out the full vigor and beauty of these flowers. But even where the soil is not exceptionally fertile daylilies produce a deluge of blooms.

Readers are invited to write the editor to ask all the questions they desire about the culture of this plant. Numerous named varieties will be found listed in new nursery and seed catalogues.

Before suggesting methods of propagation, it may be advisable to clear up confusion between this and another so-called lily—the Plantain Lily. The latter is not a lily but is rightly listed as Hosta. And although it is an exceptionally hardy perennial, it is not a relative of the Hemerocallis.

Daylilies may be started from seed, divisions from old clumps, or roots sold by larger nurseries. At this time of the year prospective growers should order roots of improved (named) varieties for mid-March delivery. Planting may be done safely as early as the soil can be worked easily. Of course, roots may be likewise be planted in late October and early November.

Among the chief reasons for growing plants from seed, besides keeping costs at a minimum, is the likelihood of obtaining rare color combinations. Seed may be grown under glass in late winter or in a lightly shaded outdoor bed in mid-summer. Seedling plants from the former may be moved to their growing sites in early summer or late spring, those from midsummer sowing should be transplanted to their places in early fall.

Interested gardeners who are unacquainted with this flower may recognize it as the reddish-orange bloom they have seen along highways and especially in weed-infested grounds in around abandoned farm houses. But here comparisons cease. Improved types include varieties which spread the season of blooming from mid-May until late September, with colors ranging from light citron-yellow through varied light tans to a dark mahogany.

As native clumps seen in abandoned locations attest, daylilies thrive in partial shade or full sun. Most experienced growers prefer to

CONSIDER THE HOLLYHOCKS

Judging the merits of improved hollyhocks by the retrograde, volunteer specimens seen around farmyards is comparable to likening a pedigree, high-producing dairy cow to a scrawny, run-out scrub heifer occasionally observed in backward agricultural communities. The modern hollyhock is truly a member of ornamental royalty. It serves a mid-summer floral role that bridges an important gardening gap. Too, it continues, if properly managed, to bring colorful blooms until early fall.

Hollyhocks are among the oldest plants grown solely for their flowers. Native to China, they were found blooming in numerous colors many decades before most of our present favorite ornamental plants were known. In the last twenty or thirty years nurserymen have developed several beautiful double types. And while these have proved exceptionally popular, many growers are returning to the improved single sorts or at least including the single types with the double.

There are three ways to begin with hollyhocks. Rooted nursery plants of both single and double kinds may be purchased from larger nurseries and set out any time after the soil is warm and danger of freezes is past. This is the preferred method for introducing the finest of hollyhocks.

Or seed may be sown in early June or even up until midsummer and seedling plants allowed to go into winter in a somewhat sheltered location where the soil is well drained. Roots of these plants should be transplanted to their flowering site in early spring, with particular care exercised to include all the laterals in a mass. Too, the root crown should be set slightly below the soil level. This latter precaution is important to reduce rust dangers.

The third method of culture is timely. Seed may be sown any time from mid-February until late March in a sunny window box, coldframe or mild hotbed. Germination occurs within less than ten days. Soon after true leaves open the seedlings should be moved to individual pots, plant bands or to roomy frames under glass to develop until mild weather permits transplanting to their growing site in May.

Hollyhocks are usually deemed biennial in habit, although they generally live over from year to year in much the manner of true perennials. It is, however, when they are allowed to behave as perennials that rust takes the heaviest toll. Growing new plants each year from seed or sowing seed by the second described method and moving roots to their growing place the next spring will greatly reduce rust dangers.

Two other factors deserve mention in successful hollyhock growing. In all cases the soil should be liberally supplied with fertility. Field-dried cattle manure gathered from a summer pasture and pulverized makes an excellent dual material to lighten the loam and supply nourishment. Sand may be added to prevent heaviness. Next, the water level should be low. Poor drainage and N. C.

HEAR REV. HANN
SUNDAY EVENING

The Rev. Victor B. Hann, superintendent of the Methodist Home for Children, Mechanicsburg, was the guest speaker at the union vesper service held at Redeemer's Evangelical and Reformed church on Sunday evening. The worship service was in charge of the host pastor, the Rev. Frank E. Reynolds. The scripture, I Corinthians 12-27, was read by the Rev. Mr. Reynolds. The church choir sang the anthem, "Incline Thy Ear to Me" by F. H. Hemmel, with Miss E. Lorraine Myers singing the solo part. The choir led the singing for the service with Miss Shirley Gobrecht, church organist, accompanying.

The Rev. Mr. Hann was introduced by the Rev. Harvey B. Simons, pastor of Centenary Methodist church. The guest speaker was secured by the Rev. Mr. Simons. The Rev. Mr. Hann said, "Jesus when he appeared on earth met both the physical and spiritual needs of his fellow man. The Church when it has been true to his spirit has likewise served man both physically and spiritually." The service closed with the benediction pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Simons.

This Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock the union vesper service will be held at Christ Evangelical and Reformed church in connection with the installation of the Rev. G. Howard Koons, the newly-elected pastor of Christ church. The installing will be done by the Rev. Irvin A. Raubold, of York, president of the Mercersburg Synod. The Rev. Edward O. Keen, treasurer of Mercersburg Synod, York, will also be present.

Ask Catholics For Funds
The annual appeal for funds for the support of Indian and Negro missions in the United States, which takes place each year on the first Sunday in Lent was made at the masses at St. Aloysius Catholic church on Sunday morning by the pastor, the Rev. Fr. Edward J. Shanahan. A pastoral letter was read concerning the work and the need of missions. Daily mass at St. Aloysius at 8 a.m., communion distributed outside of mass at 7:15 a.m.

Post Successful
The ground observation post of Littlestown, a branch of the Civilian Air Defense Corps, was "very successful" in the air raid test which was conducted on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The local post was located at the Littlestown Junior Senior high school, Maple avenue. The spotters reported a number of planes in the area by calling the Harrisburg Filter Center. The spotters thanked the telephone company for the cooperation and quick service received from them. The observers were Charles E. Ritter, chief observer; Mrs. James W. Fager, assistant chief observer; Mrs. George P. Smith, Mrs. Francis J. Will, Mrs. Cloy L. Crouse, Mrs. Leon H. Gage, Mrs. Wilbur E. Mackley, Mrs. Theron W. Spangler, John L. Bloom, J. Arthur Boyd, Clarence L. Schwartz, L. Robert Snyder, Herbert J. Motter, Theron W. Spangler, Wilbur A. Bankert, James W. Fager, John N. Sell, George P. Smith, and Walter Mehrling. Chief Observer Ritter announced that when future tests are held it will be published in the local papers.

Elderly Couple Is Suffocated By Gas

Pottstown, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP)—An elderly couple found dead in their nearby Red Hill home apparently were victims of illuminating gas, Coroner Winslow J. Rushong reported.

DEBATE ROARS
AHEAD ON PLAN
TO SEND TROOPS TO WEST EUROPE

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—A figure of 70,000—emerged today from the drawing controversy called the Great Debate. Some senators said they think military plans call for that many additional U. S. troops in Europe this year.

The lawmakers, who asked that they not be named, added, however, that Congress may kick the military plans away.

They based their opinion, they said, on an impression gained from Gen. Omar N. Bradley and others that congressional approval of ground force aid for Europe would involve sending about four additional divisions there.

Hearings On Thursday
The troops-to-Europe issue will come before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees Thursday. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Secretary of Defense Marshall are scheduled to testify.

In the meantime, the debate raged on, in Capitol Hill and in other forums across the nation.

Thomas E. Dewey, who lost a sharp blow last night at the idea of a "fortress America." It is the "utmost of folly" to think this country can be defended by air and sea power without land ground forces, he said.

Differs With Hoover
Thus the New York governor, twice candidate for president on the Republican ticket, expressed a viewpoint differing widely from the stands taken in recent days by former President Herbert Hoover and Republican Senator Taft of Ohio.

Taft said Saturday he may propose limiting American troops to a fixed percentage of the nation's ground strength. He suggested 20 per cent as a possible maximum. The Ohio Senator, who heads the Senate GOP policy committee, has challenged President Truman's right to put any American soldiers into the new western European army without Congress' consent.

"A Job For Experts"
Hoover put forward the idea of a "western hemisphere Gibraltar" in a speech last December. Friday night he spoke out again, saying the United States should put emphasis on air and naval strength and munitions—not on land armies. Dewey didn't mention either Hoover or Taft in his remarks made in answer to questions on the NBC "Meet The Press" television show. But he said: "Anyone who thinks that you can defend the United States or any substantial portion of the world with any two out of the three branches of military service is ignoring every lesson of both modern and ancient history."

Refers To Lincoln
And the question of whether American troops should be sent, Dewey said, is "a job for experts" and should not be for Congress to decide. Democratic Senator Douglas of Illinois took a leaf from the Republicans' book and brought the example of Abraham Lincoln—whose birthday is observed today—to bear on the situation.

Douglas said the free world stands today in a situation comparable to 1861 when Lincoln stood firm against further extension of slavery. And in today's stand against the spread of Communist tyranny, Douglas said, the western European countries will not have the sense of hope they need unless they feel "the United States is standing beside as well as behind them."

In a Lincoln Day speech at Lincoln City, Ind., Senator Capehart of Indiana expressed a Republican

Whales Knocked Cold By Iceberg Cluster

Wakkanai, Japan, Feb. 12 (AP)—Sixteen careless whales were cruising along today, not paying much attention to the hazards of sea travel.

They bumped into a cluster of small icebergs off the northern tip of Hokkaido island. Every one of the whales was knocked cold.

Along came some poor Japanese fishermen and bagged all 16. The whales, 20 to 30 feet long, were valued at $10,000.

Hooper Survey Calls 'Em All

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 12 (AP)—Radio station KARK Announcer Ernest Howard was in the last few seconds of his newscast last night when an unlisted phone bell began to buzz.

Only station personnel have access to the phone, and Howard figured that the news editor was calling him on a last-minute hot flash. There wasn't time to get it on the broadcast, but Howard lunged for the phone the second he went off the air.

Said the voice on the other end: "This is the Hooper Program Survey Service. No prizes or awards will be given for your answer. We just want to know if you are listening to the radio, and if so, what program?"

GUNS TELL OF
SHAH'S WEDDING

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 12 (AP)—The thunder of a 21-gun salute boomed out the news of the Shah's wedding today to lovely Soraya Esfandiari, 19-year-old granddaughter of a once rebellious Persian tribal chief.

Seated before two Chief Mullahs, Iran's highest religious leaders, the once divorced Shah and his European-educated, half-German bride were wed in a simple Moslem ceremony at Marmar Palace.

By order of the Shah, the traditional splendor of Persian court fetes was lacking in the celebration of the wedding. Iranian flags flying over snow-covered streets and a prancing squadron of lancers provided the only spots of color as the new queen's limousine carried her to the palace for the ceremony.

The Shah, 32-year-old Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, waited at the palace while his sisters, Princess Ashraf and Princess Chams, escorted the bride to the wedding scene. Soldiers guarded the palace for blocks around.

Two small daughters of court functionaries held the long train of Soraya's silver lame wedding gown as she walked up the palace staircase to the Shah's study, where the ceremony took place.

A few moments later, the royal newlyweds emerged and walked into the glittering Hall of Mirrors to receive foreign diplomats and high government officials. Only members of the royal family, relatives of the bride and a few dignitaries were present at the ceremony itself.

Identify Last Of Turnpike Victims

Chambersburg, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP)—Relatives identified the final two victims yesterday of last Wednesday's bus-truck collision on the Pennsylvania turnpike.

Major C. C. Keller of the state police said the two women were identified as Miss Isabel E. Zugadi, 20, Mexico City, an Indiana university student, and Miss Mary Harrison, 46, of New York, a Western Union teletype operator.

Three women bus passengers and a truck driver were killed when a Greyhound bus skidded into the truck on the icy toll road. The other passenger was identified Friday as Mrs. Clara Dahne, 68, of Denver, Colo.

Lebanon, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP)—Ray Sinatra, 45, of Los Angeles, arranger-composer for vocalist Evelyn Knight, was injured yesterday in an auto truck collision on the Pennsylvania turnpike. The former band leader and a cousin of crooner Frank Sinatra was en route to New York when he rammed into a stalled truck on the toll road.

Pigeon Hills And First Catholic Preparatory Seminary In United States

"Friendly Hall," First School, Was Founded In 1795 By Joseph Herent, An Exile From France

By CHARLES SLAGLE DILLER

WHERE the Lincoln Highway (then the Gettysburg-York turnpike) and the Hanover and Carlisle pike cross, stood an old inn known as Cross Keys. This old inn is tied up with all the history of the surrounding community and furnishes a background picture of the times which we are going to re-visit.

In the days of the Cross Keys Inn there were no railroads, so it became a very useful and well known place to travelers. It is located 187 miles from Pittsburgh, 103 from Philadelphia, 24 miles from Carlisle, 14 from Baltimore and about 10 miles from Gettysburg and York. It was doubtless named "Cross Keys" because of the intersection of the two pikes and the crossed keys displayed on the old inn sign. Cross Keys has seen several sheriff or bankruptcy sales in its long and varied career. Back in 1779, Nicholas Gelwick, Sheriff of York county, sold to William Gitt, Sr., the old farm at the crossroads, 1 1/2 miles from New Oxford, then a possession of James McTaggart, a grandfather of Samuel McTaggart. Mr. McTaggart was buried on the farm, near the pike, a short distance south of the dwelling. Wm. Gitt built the old stable in 1801, so marked on the foundation stone. It was rebuilt by his grandson in 1869 and was standing until a few years ago when the new hotel was constructed where the old house stood.

Tavern In 1809

Henry Gitt, son of Wm. Gitt and father of E. C. Gitt, took possession of the Cross Keys property in 1801, and opened a tavern in 1809, which he kept until the year 1852, and then closing the same, returned to private life. Since that time there has been no hotel kept there until Mr. Shultz built the modern hostelry. McTaggart at one time kept tavern at the same place, and it is said to be the first tavern stand between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Wm. Gitt attained the age of 98 1/2 years and his mother 103.

In the early days of the Cross Keys a meal cost a "bit" (12 1/2 cents) in the old Spanish or Mexican silver coin current in those days; a drink of good old rye whiskey or Monongahela, 5 cents; corn whiskey, 3 cents; upshot wine, the genuine imported article (not extract of logwood and other drugs as now), a "fippennybit" (6 1/2 cents); real Old Otter or Dupuy French brandy, utterly unknown today, 6 1/2 cents; Madettia wine, of rare vintage and flavor, 6 1/2 cents; Lisbon wine, 6 1/2 cents; Holland gin, 6 1/2 cents; a drink of elder plain, 3 cents, or "mullied," heated with a red hot poker taken from the stove or log fire on the hearth, 6 1/2 cents; apple jack and peach brandy, 6 1/2 cents; elder oil, 3 cents. When the hour of midnight struck it was customary to treat the ladies to a drink called "wine sangaree."

On July 26, 1750, Henry Gearnhart purchased 273 acres at the foot of the Pigeon Hills and in the same year the Penns sold to Robert Lorimore a tract close by. This with the "Seminary Farm," which Lorimore purchased from Gearnhart in 1758, was his property until April 4, 1794, when a friar-preacher, named Joseph Herant, purchased the whole tract and set about establishing a school there. Herant paid one thousand pounds in "gold and silver" for the "Seminary Farm," about 273 acres, and called the place "Herantford." Peter Marechal owned a farm nearby, in 1790, south of the pike which was called "Stony Batter." The Marechal family produced three priests, one a Jesuit, and a nun, Francis Marshall, one of these brother priests, died on the ocean. It is thought that he was on his way to France on some business for the Sulpicians or had accompanied Rev. Joseph Herant to the Spanish Islands, where Herant died at Martinique, April 10, 1818.

Exile From France

Joseph Herant was an exile from the fair land of France and came to this part of the country apparently because others of his nationality had already settled here, people named Marechal, De L'Eau and others whose descendants bear names similar in sound but of spelling modified by the Irish, German and other elements that eventually made up their families.

The Seminary Farm lies within sight of the Gettysburg-York Pike (now the Lincoln Highway) and along the Baltimore-Hanover-Carlisle Pike just where the old right of way of the now defunct East Berlin & R. crossed the pike.

In 1795 Herant opened a school for the boys in the country round about and called it "Friendly Hall." One of the pupils, Henry Myers, became an invalid, and remained so for several years. He had a sister, a nun, who as the story goes, on her death-bed promised to pray for his recovery when she got to heaven. The young man one day arose suddenly cured, heard a week later that his sister had died; became a priest, was pastor at Hagerstown, Md., and died at the Cathedral, Baltimore. Herant himself, about 1805, joined the Sulpicians, and was ordained a priest in 1812 by Archbishop Carroll. He was very serviceable to the Order, both as a teacher and on account of his judicious administration of finances. He went to the Antilles to collect money due the college (Mt. St. Mary's) and died in Martinique, April 10, 1818.

The Memorial Volume of St. Mary's Seminary (Baltimore, 1891) tells us, as well as John T. Reilly, to whom we are most indebted for this information, that the Sulpician priests were driven from France by the Great Revolution, and coming to Baltimore, July 10, 1790, brought with them five seminarians, and at once began their seminary in the One Mile Tavern, with its four surrounding acres, on the site of their present buildings. An academy had been founded at Georgetown two years previously, and members of the Sulpician community sometimes filled chairs therein. In 1793, in order to develop vocations they began to gather a few boys at their own place in Baltimore, to whom they taught Latin and French, but this ceased after a year, "lest it would hurt Georgetown." In 1799, however, they opened St. Mary's Academy in their seminary residence, with three Cubans and a few French boys, all boarders, who, in 1800, were transferred to a new building on the grounds, called St. Mary's College.

Limit Enrollment

In 1803 the Spanish government ordered the Cubans home. Bishop Carroll had allowed the Sulpicians to take first 12 pupils, then 25, but, out of deference to him and to Georgetown, no American boys were received. However, when the Cubans left, the college was opened, not only to boarders, but day scholars also, and without distinction of creed. In 1805 it got a university charter from the state of Maryland, and the following year, having 106 pupils, conferred degrees for the first time. (This college flourished until 1852, when, by arrangement with the Jesuits, it was succeeded by Loyola university.)

The Sulpicians always desired, however, to take up their proper work, and in 1806 sent a contingent to Pigeon Hills, where on August 15, under the guidance of Father M. M. Nagot, S.S., they gathered a dozen boys of that neighborhood, evidently pupils of Herant, who wished to become priests, and "with the aid of a few seminarians," trained them to literature and piety. The Sulpician priests and students came from Baltimore in two and four-horse hacks, by way of Work. So the early Cone-wago priests came.

The men who managed the temporal affairs of the seminary at Pigeon Hills were Father John Tessier, S.S., Superior of the seminary of St. Charles in Baltimore (he died there March 19, 1840, and Rev. Lewis Deluol, S.S., Superior of the Sisters of Charity at Emmitsburg, October 13, 1818, one of our local newspapers stated that John Tessier, St. Mary's seminary, offers for sale 300 acres, formerly property of Rev. Joseph Herant, dec'd., Berwick township, Adams county (Seminary farm).

"Fippennybit"

Mr. Adam Oaster, the blacksmith of Oaster's or Red Hill, worked for Father Tessier and Deluol. Gitt's tavern at the Cross Keys was very popular and sometimes in the evenings the pike each way would be lined with coaches and wagons. They came to Oaster's blacksmith shop at Red Hill for repairs, it cost a "fippennybit" 6 1/2 cents a shoe for horses. Oaster said that blacksmiths in those days had much work but hard times getting along, for want of the cash system. They had to trust farmers for a year, after harvest was setting time, the hardware man charged them interest after three months and they always were in the red for iron. Sundays teams and coaches were on the roads, and sometimes had breakdowns or lame animals, for whom Oaster would make repairs so they could go on.

The Gitts of Cross Keys tavern were neighbors and intimate friends of the Sulpicians, whom they interested in oil and coal; several wells were dug and a cut was made through a knob of the Pigeon Hills, a driveway at present, where Mr. Oaster worked nearly three years carting ground. There were about three hundred acres of land at the foot of the Pigeon Hills, near Turkey Spring, so named for the number of wild fowl that drank there. The land flowed with springs, still does, "the best water in the county" the claim that originally attracted the French-exile Monk and Priest Joseph Herant, and his compatriots, the Marechals (Marshalls), Noels, Jenkinses, and Dellones (Abbottstown-Paradise area). It was a wild place in those days, covered in many places with brushwood. Many arrowheads, axes and other stone artifacts and implements found on the farm show definite evidence of early Indian occupation of this site. A few Indians lingered there in the early part of 1800. The long, old buildings which served as dwelling and chapel are gone. A new house was built further down when Peter O'Neill lived there. His children were born here, Benjamin and Judith Pink occupied the place before O'Neill. A new barn was built with part of the stone wall of the old one. In the meadow stands a spring-house over a strong cool spring. The old French poplar stands where years ago was an old house, used below as a washstand and above an ironing room.

Old Trees Stand

Up where the old chapel stood are still large old poplar trees, pears and apples, as in student days it was a great place for fruit. Old cherry, walnut, hickory, bean, chestnut and other trees are still standing where the students used to have benches and seats built in the trees for places to study in nice weather. Out the lane is visible the curbing and hole of the well, long filled with stone and dirt, the old house standing partly over the well, from which water was drawn for the large yard and gardens, which were laid out with beautiful walks and landscaped in various designs. Part of the land was sold to Peter Oaster, married to a Miss Hare of McSherrystown. Jerome Miller was tenant in 1895, a son of Daniel Miller and Christina. Long she loved to recall trunking Rev. Lewis Deluol carry trunks and packages from the pike where the stages passed, across the fields to the seminary. She had a sister, a religious, Jerome Miller was first married to a daughter of Squire John Elder, his second wife was a daughter of John Stambaugh, the mother was a Klunk. The father of Daniel was Lewis Miller; Daniel had a brother Henry and Jerome a brother, Aloysius. When they were boys they used to bring produce to the seminary.

Out in the open fields stands an old chestnut tree, where in student days they used to gather chestnuts. It may stand years yet if unmolested. Lightning struck some of the old trees. There are a few old maples. In olden times a row of cherry trees fronted the chapel; now locust stands there. The old buildings were all frame. Back of the old garden stands a clump of trees, on a rocky ledge, and in the center a tall old pine just as it did 50 years ago. The last old cherry trees were cut down in the summer of 1894.

A student died at the seminary during the summer and was buried in front of the church; that winter Mr. Gitt took his body to St. Mary's in Baltimore. The students were nearly all Spanish or French.

In 1895 Mr. McCosh of Hanover owned the farm. In this year of 1947 David O'Brien is the owner and operator. The East Berlin branch railroad ran between the seminary and the Lincoln Highway in later years; traces of the cuts for the tracks are still visible.

Refugee Students

We are told that many of the students were boys from the West Indies, children, no doubt, or refugees from Hayti, like Mr. Charles Leloup, for 20 years a professor at Mt. St. Mary's, and the Chatared family, etc.

The old men at the Pigeon Hill section used to tell how the "Gentlemen of St. Sulpice" and their lively young charges used to walk the five miles to Conewago Chapel, where the Jesuits were, on Corpus Christi, St. Inigo's Day and other occasions and assist in the grand celebrations. Many distinguished clergymen of their day used to visit Pigeon Hills. Bishop Chance of Natchez, one of Archbishop Elder's predecessors in that See, used to lecture at the Hills, and Elder, when he was a student at the Mountain and later a professor there, used to make his retreat here. In fact records show that practically every prominent ecclesiastic in the United States for the first half of the 19th century visited the Hills and the Mountain.

The Seminary of Pigeon Hills, begun in 1806 by Father Nagot, was eventually transferred to the Mountain. The decision to transfer was made on February 8, 1809, and the actual move took place on the 28th and 29th of April, just after Easter of that year. Sixteen young men were sent to the care of Mr. Dubois, who later became the Bishop of New York, and lodged first at the house of Mr. Arnold Elder.

The names of the boys that came the first day are: Columbkille, O'Connor, John O'Connor, Taliferro O'Connor, James Shorb (afterwards and so long "the beloved physician" of the Mountain), James Clements, John Fitzgerald, John Lilly and Johnathan Walker. Eight more came the day after. These boys were boarded at Mr. Elders' at $80.00 a year, with $5.00 extra for washing. The first intention was to continue here to bring up, in an ecclesiastical manner, the young subjects who might display any leaning for the priesthood. Father M. Nagot, S.S., being detained by illness in Baltimore, Father Dubois, now a Sulpician, continued in charge and began to receive new subjects from the neighborhood. Father Dubois was the founder of Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg, Md.

After the transfer from the Hills the Baltimore House proposed to pay Father Dubois an annual allowance of $600.00, as it had done to M. Nagot at Pigeon Hills. No record of this was ever completed.

Receive Land

The records of the Bureau of Education, and Rees' Encyclopedia, A. D. 1809, show some interesting facts about college tuition and enrollment. Mount St. Mary's had 65 students and charged (although they say themselves perhaps the hands, etc., were counted) $125.00 a year; Harvard had 190 and charged $120.00; Yale had 290 and charged $150.00; Princeton charged $170.00 to each of its 130 students; and Dartmouth, $100.00 to its 150 students.

In 1830, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, then in his 93rd year, gave the Sulpicians the land on which St. Charles college, called after the patron saint of the great last signer of the Declaration of Independence, was afterwards erected. It was opened in 1848, and 1849 the farm at Pigeon Hills was disposed of.

After the removal of the students from Pigeon Hills to the Mountain the place was used as a retreat and a summer vacation spot for the boys from Baltimore. 1830-1840 the Spanish students spent their summer vacation at the seminary farm. They are remembered in tale and legend as a wild, rough, devil-may-care set. They shot domestic animals, rode horses and bulls to death, shot swallows in the farmer's barns, and endangered life and property so that the people of the neighborhood protested and invoked the arm of the law for their safety.

Student Tricks

The Spanish students at the seminary farm were great shooters. They once shot a hog that had pigs and told the owner that she was too poor to live. Three or four got out an old horse of a man named Mr. Shroyer. Some had a hold of the mane and some the tail. They rode the horse to death and then settled with the owner for $25.00. Many of the boys were excellent in swimming and frequented the neighboring dams where they excelled in all forms of swimming on their back, diving, etc. Most of them could handle a rope well, often looped horses on the run and lassoed a cross bull and worried him to death. John T. Reilly says they were heathens and did not know it. Mr. Oaster remembers such Spanish names as Pablo, Sanctiano, etc. Old Mrs. Fullmer, of Hanover, used to bring baskets of cakes out to sell to the students, nearly every day.

Reilly says the worst evil and the moral drawback was the numerous distilleries all around the neighborhood. Remember in those days almost every farmer distilled his grain, as it was marketed to a better advantage in liquid form and was more easily transported. Whiskey was as cheap and almost as free as air and water.

Here in 1803, the Trappist friars, when expelled from the "Vaterland" found a refuge, and from this place they set out under Rev. Urban Guillet to found their order in the wilds of Kentucky. (Bates)

Certain Trappist monks, exiles from France, bought a farm near the seminary in 1803, but remained only a short time and settled finally in Nova Scotia. "The Monks' Farm" is called after them.

One Is Ordained

Only one of the students of Pigeon Hills was ever ordained to the priesthood. The second child born to Peter Shanefelter, Sr., and Elizabeth Dutt, George Shanefelter was a student. Born in 1792, he commenced his studies at the Little Seminary in Pigeon Hills, and in 1808 entered St. Mary's in Baltimore. After completing his course at Baltimore he taught for some years at Mt. St. Mary's college, Emmitsburg, and on August 15, 1818, was ordained a priest by Archbishop Marechal, in St. Peter's church, at Baltimore, then the Cathedral. After his ordination he taught for one year in St. Mary's college, Baltimore, October 11, 1819, he commenced his labors as a priest at Lancaster, Pa., where he remained until October 1, 1821. Among the oldest records at St. Peter's church in Reading, Pa., are the entries of baptisms and marriages at which he was the officiating priest; the dates February 26 and March 1, 1819. Father Shanefelter passed on to his heavenly home at Reading, July 11, 1824, his 32nd year of age and his fifth in the priesthood. He was buried in the Reading cemetery on the 13th of July, 1824.

WILL START ON "COLOMBO PLAN" IN CEYLON TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

This is the day set for an organizational meeting in Colombo, Ceylon, of the ambitious "Colombo Plan," inaugurated by British Commonwealth countries for development of poverty-ridden countries of south and southeast Asia.

America has agreed to participate in this project, which aims at bettering the condition of some 570,000,000 people—about a quarter of all humanity—who live in this important area. Untold millions of these folk never have known anything but hunger and other deprivations.

Others Invited

The plan was devised by British Commonwealth countries of south and southeast Asia in cooperation with Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. Already in the plan are Ceylon, India, Pakistan, Malaya, Singapore, North Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak. Also invited are Burma, Indo-China, Indonesia and Thailand.

All these countries lie in that vast Asiatic theatre which has become a vital battle-ground between communism and the democracies. It is fertile soil for any developments which promise even a little easement of the suffering populations.

Despite the humanitarian aspects of the project, it calls for skillful handling. It likely will evoke a Communist cry of "Western imperialism," and one of the main tasks of the plan's sponsors will be to assure the countries concerned that it isn't in any way calculated to interfere with "Asia for the Asians."

Productive Areas

The countries included in the Colombo Plan produce most of the world's jute and rubber, a third of all oils and fats and two-thirds of the globe's tin. There are, of course, some highly developed sections, but this area in general lies in the hunger belt.

The Colombo Plan contemplates a great transformation of the area in question in six years. Among other things it is planned to get 13 million acres of land under cultivation and produce six million more tons of food grains.

A large part of the cost of the project will fall on the governments of the countries to be helped. The British say their own contribution is likely to be well over $840,000,000. America's participation will include so far as possible the coordination of her own programs in that area with the British Commonwealth and the United Nations projects.

Touring Golfers In Mexican Open Event

Mexico City, Feb. 12 (AP)—Seven touring golfers are here to play in the Mexican National Open and it furnishes the first big test of the new set-up in the PGA whereby the players have representation on a tournament administrative committee.

This committee disapproved the participation of PGA members and PGA-approved tournament players in open tournaments which conflict in dates with PGA-sponsored ones. The action was taken Saturday during the Texas Open in San Antonio, Tex., and was aimed at a number of golfers who announced they would play at Mexico City and pass up the Rio Grande Valley Open at Harlingen, Tex., starting Thursday. The group of players, headed by Jimmie Demaret of Ojai, Calif., defied the committee and arrived here last night. They were met by members of the Mexican Golf association. The U. S. players declined to say anything about the PGA action last night, but Demaret said they might have something to say today after talking with Mexican golf officials.

Ephraim (Red) Rocha, 6-foot 9-inch enter of the Baltimore Bullets in the N.B.A., was born in Hilo, Hawaii.

French Reporter

Killed In Korea

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 12 (AP)—Jean Marie de Premonville, 30, war correspondent for the French Press Agency, was killed today on a patrol with U. S. Rangers on the central Korean front. De Premonville fell with three machine gun bullets in his body. He bled to death on the way to an army aid station.

The Frenchman was killed with a patrol on a ridge northwest of Chipung, 35 miles east of Seoul. He was in a lookout post when hit.

He was a resistance fighter in France in World War II.

De Premonville was the fifth correspondent killed in action in Korea. Seven other war correspondents have died in plane accidents in connection with the war. Three more are missing and presumed to be dead. Two others have been captured.

Oil Truck Burns

In Queens Tunnel

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—An oil truck burst into flames in the Queens-Midtown vehicular tunnel under the East river today, and stopped all traffic through the tunnel between Manhattan and Queens. The truck caught fire just after it entered the tunnel in Queens, police said. It rolled about 100 yards before coming to a stop.

The fire caused a traffic jam at each end of the tunnel, and police diverted vehicles to other East river crossings.

U. S. ARMY TRAINS GERMANS — Germans in a labor service battalion established by the U. S. Army drill on the field of a former fire department school in Berlin.

TANK TRUCKS HAULING WATER TO COLUMBIA

Columbia, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP) — A fleet of tank trucks shuttled thousands of gallons of water today into this city of 12,000 residents trapped between a freak flood and a freak drought.

The flood, backing up from a mighty ice jam in the mile-wide Susquehanna river, has inundated the municipal water supply plant. As a result no water has been pumped into the borough reservoir since Friday and the system is almost completely out of operation. Only a trickle of water is available in the mains.

Burgess Walter Royce declared the situation a "dire emergency." He ordered drinking water rationed at a quart a day per person. Factories shut down because they could obtain no water. City officials said any fire might be a serious danger to the community. Even bathing and shaving were discouraged.

The traditional Monday "wash day" was postponed in most homes. Police Chief Eugene McManus said he had received a few complaints of house wives surreptitiously washing clothes, and promised arrests would be made if he could substantiate the complaints. He said he had power to act under the emergency proclamation.

A total of 50 big tank trucks, hauling some 3,000 gallons each, were pressed into water-carrying duty today. Most of them were operating between here and Lancaster, 15 miles to the east, where city officials set up special pumping arrangements at the fire hydrants to speed filling the tanks.

Other trucks were operating from York, 20 miles to the west, and the Hershey estates assigned 14 trucks from its large milk-hauling fleet.

Fear Fire Hazard

The water was being hauled to a hilltop, then released through fire hoses into the nearly-empty Columbia reservoir.

Whatever water can be obtained, Royce ordered, must be boiled.

"We can't take any chances," he said. "The drinking of unpurified water could cause disease and epidemic."

"Let's face it, we are like a beleaguered city," commented other officials. "The entire life of the community is thrown out of joint, and hazards exist which were unthought of a few days ago."

Royce and his colleagues said they were troubled most less fire break out. "We'd be wiped out by a fire," he asserted.

No Relief In Sight

And today it was thought likely these conditions might last indefinitely. A slight thaw yesterday had to effect on the ice jam.

The river remained frozen fast for eight miles, shore to shore, from Marietta to Washington Boro. Columbia stands midway between those river points.

The ice jam caused a freak flood which last Friday sent the river 17 feet above normal level, drove 50 families from their homes, disrupted railroad service and engulfed some highways. The Columbia Water works was put out of commission, and several industries closed down.

New Declaration

Signed At Shrine

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (AP)—Independence Hall—cradle of American freedom—may one day be known also as a shrine of liberation for central and eastern Europe.

In a brief ceremony reminiscent of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence in 1776, a declaration of liberation for central and eastern European peoples was signed yesterday.

The 160 exiles from 10 iron curtain nations who signed the charter rededicated themselves, among other things, to the principle of a United Europe.

The ceremony was at once a demonstration of stiffening resistance to Soviet domination and an observance of Lincoln's birthday.

CREEK ROMEO

VOWS LOVE FOR WIFE AT TRIAL

Canea, Crete, Feb. 12 (AP) — The Romeo of Crete's stormy Romeo and Juliet mountain romance went on trial here today, vowing love for his kidnapped bride even if he pays with his life.

Tears streaming down his face, the Romeo—smoldering Costa Kephalyannis—rose in court to answer routine questions as his trial began on charges of forming an armed band to kidnap the lady of his heart, daughter of a rival family.

The Juliet in the case, dark-haired Tassoula Petracogorgi, now is expecting Costa's baby. The court read a statement attributed to her saying she would stay away from the trial. But spectators did not rule out the possibility she might

DISALLE SAYS PRICE LEVELS TO RISE MORE

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Michael V. D'Salle, the government's price director, said today he expects the general price level to go up another "five or six per cent, or even more" before some degree of stability is achieved, probably about mid-summer.

"I am in complete disagreement with some of the economists who say that maybe in five months we'll have a three-point rise," D'Salle said. "I think it's going to be higher than that, x x x."

"I'd be tickled to death if by June or July we would begin to see some results of stability. I'm no optimist about what is going to happen."

Supplies Ample Now

As D'Salle expressed this view in a copyrighted interview with the magazine "U. S. News and World Report," growing dissatisfaction with progress of the economic stabilization program on the part of big segments of organized labor piled up new headaches for him and wage controls officials.

D'Salle said his office has not yet been given authority to ration goods or have rationing books printed, and he added: "Right at the moment supplies seem to be ample in all fields and we don't anticipate the need for that at the moment. Meat might be the first item we would have some trouble with."

Labor dissatisfaction with the central Korea is stopped. On the central front, the Reds were attacking Hoengsong from three directions. Hoengsong is 10 miles north of Wouju, the road center where the U.S. Second Division with French support smashed an earlier Red drive that permitted the Allies to launch their own offensive Jan. 25.

From Hoengsong, five Allied columns had thrust from six to nearly 12 miles in a fan-shaped drive west, north and northwest of the town.

The Red offensive wiped out most of these gains and threatened to crumple the whole center of the 150-mile Allied line across Korea.

Hoengsong, 50 air miles east of Seoul, is in rugged hill country where the terrain favors the enemy. Roads are narrow and two mountain passes south of Hoengsong normally permit only one-way traffic.

The Communists move along these icy, precipitous roads like mountain goats but transport is dangerous for whole stabilization program had been smoldering for some time and came out openly over the week-end. It seemed likely to play a part in the government's efforts to come up with a formula for unfreezing most wages.

The Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) which has prime responsibility for devising that formula is reported split three ways and some of its members are said to be discouraged about prospects for an agreement. Three of the nine members represent labor, three industry and three the general public.

the mechanized Allied forces. The temperature had dipped to zero.

Aim At U. S. Supplies

The aim of the attack was to cut the main road leading 12 miles southward to Wouju. Allied supply and communications hub.

A. F. Correspondent William J. Waugh reported elements of the three Red regiments southwest of Hoengsong were only one mile and a half from the main road.

American officers in that area reported the retreating South Koreans were re-assembling and added:

"All they have to do now is fight their way out."

Waugh described the Red strategy as similar to that used on the Chongchon river front in far north-central Korea last November. There the Chinese, attacking at night, threw their main punch at South Korean units covering the Eighth Army's right flank. The flank caved in and forced a general withdrawal by the Allies.

Ousted From Seoul

On the Western front, Allied artillery and warplanes pounded Red-held Seoul. The old fire-blackened former republic capital was reported bristling with Communist defenses.

Patrols entered the sprawling city over the week-end but were forced to withdraw. Efforts Sunday to reinforce a South Korean patrol in Seoul were stopped by Red small arms fire.

West and northwest of Seoul the Allies mopped up a triangle formed by recaptured Yongdungpo, Seoul's industrial suburb, Incheon, the yellow seaport, and Kimp'o, Seoul's west.

Incheon is 19 air miles west of Seoul; Kimp'o 15 miles northwest of the city.

FROZEN WOMAN MAY RECOVER

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP)—The young negro woman who was found "frozen stiff" last week and amazed the medical profession by surviving the thawing out "was holding her own" today.

Although she was able to say yesterday that "I'm feeling fairly well," physicians at Michael Reese hospital described her condition as still critical.

The woman, Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, 23, had a body temperature of only 64 degrees—34.6 degrees below normal—when she was taken to the hospital last Thursday morning. When she was found lying in an alley in sub-zero weather, her body was rigid and physicians said her blood had chilled to a sludge.

Hers is the first known case of survival from such exposure. The American Medical association said it has no record of a human surviving a body temperature lower than 75 degrees.

Physicians said Mrs. Stevens has been able to move her hands and feet but that they could not say yet whether any amputations might be necessary. That will depend they explained, on whether gangrene develops.

A rubber tube has been inserted in her neck for feeding purposes.

regards extent of territory, fertility of soil, and salubrity of climate. We find ourselves under the government of a system of political institutions conducting more essentially to the ends of civil and religious liberty than any of which the history of former times tells us.

"We, when mounting the stage of existence, found ourselves the legal inheritors of these fundamental blessings. We toiled not in the acquisition or establishment of them; they are a legacy bequeathed us by a once hardy, brave, and patriotic, but now lamented and departed, race of ancestors. Theirs was the task (and nobly they performed it) to possess themselves, and through themselves us, of this goodly land, and to tread upon its hills and its valleys a political edifice of liberty and equal rights; 'tis ours only to transmit these—the former unproven by the foot of an invader, the latter undecayed by the lapse of time and untorn by usurpation—to the latest generation that fate shall permit the world to know. This task gratitude to our fathers, justice to ourselves, duty to posterity, and love for our species in general, all imperatively require us faithfully to perform.

"How then shall we perform it? At what point shall we expect the approach of danger? By what means shall we fortify against it? Shall we expect some transatlantic military giant to step the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never! All the armies of Europe, Asia, and Africa combined, with all the treasure of the earth (our own excepted) in their military chest, with a Bonaparte for a commander, could not by force take a drink from the Ohio or make a track on the Blue Ridge in a trial of a thousand years.

"At what point then is the approach of danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reach us it must spring up amongst us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of freemen we must live through all time, or die by suicide. . . .

"There are now, and will hereafter be, many causes, dangerous in their tendency, which have not existed heretofore, and which are not too insignificant to merit attention. That our government should have been maintained in its original form, from its establishment until now, is not much to be wondered at. It had many props to support it through that period, which now are decayed and crumbled away. Through that period it was felt by all to be an undecided experiment; now it is understood to be a successful one. . . .

from the Elgin home with the Rev. Alton K. Leister, pastor of the Reformed church in East Berlin, and the Rev. Lester Karschner, pastor of the Lutheran church there, officiating.

Masonic services will be conducted at St. Mark's Episcopal church, St. Mark's, near Brunswick, Md., and interment will be made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Friends may call Tuesday evening at the Elgin home.

GI UPKEEP COST AT NEW HIGH LEVEL

By RUTH COWAN

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—When it comes to the cost of upkeep, man in uniform is rapidly catching up with the blonde in mink and pearls.

The next time you see a GI walking along the street, you can say to yourself: "There goes a man it takes $10,000 a year to support." On the average, that is.

And the same goes for the lads in blue, green and gray—officers and enlisted men alike.

The figure is based on information the Department of Defense sent to the Armed Services committee.

Would Reduce Costs

The committee is expected to act this week on a defense department proposal to set up a system of universal military service and training. Under this program men drafted to service would continue in a reserve force after active duty ended.

The defense department contends this would be less costly than maintaining a large standing army. It told the committee that it will cost approximately $35,000,000,000 a year just to support 3,000,000 men on active duty.

Committee aides explained that this money would go to feed 'em, clothe 'em, train 'em, house 'em and put money into their pay envelopes; maintain their equipment—gas for planes, tanks and jeeps, and grease for rifles. It also would cover dependents' allotments for enlisted men assigned away from home.

But it doesn't cover the original cost of equipment, nor of barracks and bases, airfields, ships and radar warning systems.

On the other hand, Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.), of the Armed Services committee pointed out, the reservist supports himself.

for duty in case there should ever be a need for full-time operation of the post. One hundred seventy-eight observers should be on the rolls, Miss Stallsmith said.

On a state level the test was supported by Col. Alton C. Miller, senior Civil Defense director, to be "highly successful."

There will be a meeting of all county supervisors and their chief observers Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the court house, Jacob Britcher, co-deputy coordinator, announced today.
